

TEACHERS ASK BOARD TO EXPLAIN THE MERIT RAISES

Approve of Minimum Salary of $2300 For Teachers of Bristol

$350 INCREASE OKAYED

Inquire As To Method of Appraisal For Merit Increases

Bristol public school teachers have approved of the $2300 minimum salary established by the school board and they have also approved of the $350 per year raise for those teachers not on state maximum mandated salary schedule.

They have asked the board, however, to clarify the "meaning of the provision of the merit raises with specific statement about increments, maximum salaries and methods of appraisal."

In a letter addressed to the School Board and released by the teachers for publication today, the teachers write as follows:

March 28, 1949
Mrs. Edith Harding, President
Bristol Borough School Board
Bristol, Pennsylvania

My dear Mrs. Harding:
The day following the regular March meeting of the Bristol Borough School Board, Mr. Snyder notified all of us teachers of the Board's proposals for salary for the school year 1949-50. The Bristol Borough Teachers Association met the same day in a special meeting and passed the following motions:

The Bristol teachers approve a $2300 minimum salary for new teachers.

The Bristol teachers approve of the $350 per year raise for those teachers not on state maximum mandated salary schedule.

The Bristol teachers would like clarification as to the meaning and provision of the merit raises with specific statement about increments, maximum salaries, and methods of appraisal.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN C. BURRIS
President
Teachers Association

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Residents of Dublin borough have voted 24 to 15 in favor of sending pupils of grades five to 12 to Sellersville-Perkasie schools.

The purpose of the meeting, attended by between 40 and 50 persons, was to determine what action the patrons of the Dublin schools want the board to take.

Three propositions were presented for consideration. One was to retain the schools at Dublin on their present status and to forego the full State appropriation because the borough schools do not have the required 30 pupils per teacher.

Another was to take up the Deep Run Valley Joint School District's plan of absorbing the pupils, and the third was to send the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils and the high school students to Sell-Perk and to keep the one room open here for the first four grades.

The plan voted will be a three-year setup. According to an agreement last year, Sell-Perk will provide the transportation at a rate of a dollar per mile per day at the expense of the Dublin school district.

Action taken does not mean that Dublin will affiliate with Sell-Perk Deep Run Valley or any other joint school district at present.

Before the plan approved at the meeting goes into force, it will have to be approved by the Dublin school board.

The borough at present has a school population of 57, and a majority of the high school students are going to Sell-Perk.

Hope College Glee Club To Present Program Here

The Hope College Men's Glee Club will make an appearance in Bristol tomorrow evening, presenting a concert of sacred and secular music in the Bristol Presbyterian Church. At the present time they are making a tour of the east and will arrive in Bristol this afternoon.

The glee club appears under the direction of its youthful conductor, Prof. Robert W. Cavanaugh. Mr. Cavanaugh is head of the music department at Hope College, to which position he returned after an absence of 30 months serving in the U. S. Navy.

While there he took an active part in the University Glee Club, serving as president of that organization. He also sang the leading roles in several musical comedies offered by the University. He later studied at the American Conservatory of Music in Chicago under Theodore Harrison and Leo Sowerby. The B. Mus. degree was conferred upon him by the Conservatory in 1939 and the Master of Music degree in 1940.

The public is invited. Tickets are not required. A free will offering will be received which will go to the Glee Club to help them to defray their expenses.

FEW COUPLES SEEK MARRIAGE LICENSES

Only 76 Ask For Such At Bucks County Seat In Month of March

MANY VERY YOUNG

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5—Only 76 couples sought marriage licenses in this county seat during the month of March, according to the Clerk of Orphans Court.

It was essentially a month of young brides and grooms, after the many marriages of older persons during the mid-Winter months. Almost half of the applicants were barely at age, with six would-be benedicts who need parental consent and 21 underage prospective housewives. The one young bachelor was only 18, with the other five aged 20. Of the brides, 3 were 17 years of age, 5 were 18, 8 were 19 and 4 were 20.

In the divorced group the men held sway, with 16 males re-treading the bridal path and 7 grass widows taking vows again. Every divorced person had received his or her paper since 1943, one couple doing a remarrying act after a three year separation, and one man taking his third step into married bliss.

Death had claimed four former spouses and 3 husbands, one man's wife having died just 2 months ago. Two men, however, had waited 15 and 18 years before plunging a second time.

The Philadelphia section still provided the largest number of middle-aiders with 42, thirty of whom were from the city proper. The lower part of the county came through with 39 candidates and Bristol leading as usual. In the upper portion of the county, Quakertown sent 8 grooms and 6 brides out of a total of 31.

CLERGYMAN BURIED

He had during recent years filled various pulpits in the capacity of a supply preacher.

Veteran of World War II Was Native of Yardley—Victim Caught Between Vehicle and Door As He Attempts To Mount Truck Where Ladders Are Suspended—Young Man is Survived By His Wife.

YARDLEY, Apr. 5—A volunteer fireman died last night in a Trenton hospital of injuries received when he was crushed against the door of the fire station as the apparatus left, responding to a call.

The victim: James Hurley, 25, of Brown street, married.

Hurley, a native of Yardley, was the husband of Frances Catherine Hurley. A navy veteran of World War II, he was employed by the Cold Spring Bleachery.

Hurley, a member of the local fire company, responded with a number of firemen to the alarm which sounded at about 9.35 last evening. As he was attempting to board the side of the truck, where ladders were suspended, he was crushed against the side of the door as the apparatus made a turn in leaving the fire station.

A physician residing nearby was called.

The alarms are telephoned to the Cold Spring Bleachery, from which plant the fire alarm is sounded. The fire call was received at the station at about 9.35 p. m. The person making the call hung up before giving a name, but told the firemen there was a fire at the River Road and the railroad bridge. It was to this point that the firemen were enroute when the accident occurred. Arriving at this destination no evidence of fire was found. Later, however, it was learned that a lot at another bridge of the Reading Railroad, which crosses South Main street near the American Legion home had been burned off.

There were about eight men on the apparatus at the time and according to Fire Chief, Horace Elsenbrey, Hurley, who had been a member for about one year, attempted to get onto the rear of one side where there is very little space on which to stand as it is where the ladders are mounted. Firemen usually stand further toward the front on the side. There is a clearance of about six or eight inches between the apparatus and the doors. Hurley was crushed in this space.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan (Distributed by International News Service)

Newfoundland had no trouble gaining provincial status in Canada but we still have Alaska on a waiting list and no one knows why.

Some say the country just couldn't stand two more Senators but we've got some more hardly used this session.

Sen. Taylor has been busy reforming Birmingham, Alabama and Alaska can do no less than send its two Senators to Idaho to reform Boise in exchange.

That will mean two more absentees along with Sen. Wagner who hasn't punched the clock in two years.

Sen. Wagner hasn't retired... he's of retirement age but Dewey isn't and he has the power of appointment.

Hawaii has no luck in trying to join the club either... somebody keeps putting a fly in the pot but the way things look we could use all the States we can pickup.

Fire Damages Dager Home at Edgely

EDGELEY, Apr. 5—Fire caused $1000 damage to the home of Alfred Dager, Radcliffe street, here, at 10:45 this morning. The blaze is said to have been caused by sparks from a grass and brush fire on the property of Edgely water works. The T-shaped shingle roof, walls and some furniture on the second floor were damaged by the fire. At the same time that Bristol firemen were summoned to fight the grass fire at the water works property, Headley Manor Fire Co. was summoned to the Dager residence. Companies combined forces to battle the dwelling fire. When the blaze was conquered, firemen spread tarpaulin on the roof as a protection until repairs can be started.

60 Believed Killed in Illinois Hospital Fire

EFFINGHAM, Ill.—Some 60 persons (including eight infants) were believed killed today in a raging fire which destroyed St. Anthony's Hospital at Effingham. Arthur Jones, Red Cross disaster director, said that a check of all surrounding area hospitals to which survivors of the blazing inferno had been taken showed that 52 of the reported 112 patients had been accounted for.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Twelve nations signed the North Atlantic treaty in Washington yesterday, warning any aggressor that an attack on one would be regarded as an attack on all. The signatories were the United States, Canada, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal, Britain, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Belgium and Luxembourg. "For us," President Truman said in an address just before the actual signing, "war is not inevitable." Charges that the pact was "an aggressive act" he called "absolutely untrue," saying it was "a shield against aggression" anywhere in the world. This country's concern for the security and welfare of other areas, such as the Near East, he added, has not lessened.

Washington observers saw the signing as the logical last step in President Truman's repudiation of isolationism in this country's foreign policy. Congressional reaction indicated a long and searching debate, particularly on an arms program, before ratification.

From Iran came a report of a heavy engagement in which Russian forces attacked an Iranian frontier post in Azerbaijan.

Delegates to the United Nations General Assembly, which reconvenes at Flushing Meadow this afternoon, gave close attention to the North Atlantic treaty.

GOLD AND THE POUND

Rumors continue that the stage is being set, in Washington and elsewhere, for the announcement of financial news of world-wide importance.

Hints are that the news will concern the English pound sterling, or the value of gold, or both.

There could easily be developments in the making in both of these matters.

As for the British currency, there have been intimations for two years or so that the pound would be devalued. The official rate on the exchanges, which is a couple of cents over $4 in American currency, is too high. Unofficial and black-market rates are much lower.

This is a differential which works to the disadvantage of the British government and to British exporters. It also is a hardship to the British people themselves who receive the money from the government at the official rate but, when they come to spend it, have to do so some of the time on the basis of prices determined by the unofficial rate.

France devalued her franc a year or so ago. She expected to score big gains by the price-reductions this was predicted to mean in all the commodities she exports. But it hasn't worked out that way. The increase in France's dollar-exports have been inconsequential. Currency juggling never yet has taken the place of efficiency in production. Also, France has persisted in further inflating her already watered currency.

The same arguments that led to the revaluation of the franc will be heard supporting the devaluation of the pound, if this is on the way. The British people will be told that this is a new master-stroke by the Socialist Party. They will be told that it will automatically increase exports, reduce home-front prices, wipe out scarcities, etc.

Actually, in itself it will do none of these things. England is up against the problem of having a governmental "give-away" program that uses up more of the national income than the country can afford.

Pegging the pound, or un-pegging it, won't change that basic picture. England will have hard times until she carves her government spending back into the figure of what she can afford. She may kid herself, for a time, that the American money-gifts concealed in the ERP program are keeping her on easy street.

ANOTHER CANAL?

Nicaragua's Defense Minister Anastasio Somoza, acting for his government, has offered the United States a 99 year lease on sections of Nicaraguan territory
if this country will construct another canal to link the Atlantic and the Pacific. It is a very tempting offer, one that will find many backers in this country.

But does the United States need another canal? Proponents of a second water bridge linking the two oceans have pointed out the extreme vulnerability of the Panama Canal, and the drastic consequences of its destruction in time of war. Their primary consideration is the 8,000 mile journey around the Horn of Africa and supply ships would have to make if the canal were to be put out of commission.

It seems to many that this argument is no longer valid. It can safely be said that the canal's strategic importance was decreasing
long before the end of World War II. Today the U. S. no longer has a two-ocean Navy. It has two great navies, each with an equal number of supply and combat ships, and each with its "mother" reserve fleet. Either of these two vast armadas is greater than any combat unit afloat under a foreign flag. From a strategic standpoint, then, there seems to be less need of another canal than there was a decade ago.

From an economic standpoint
the case against another canal is more clear cut. The Panama Canal actually cost the United States $375,000,000 when it was completed in 1914. Up to 1944 the total cost, including improvements
and interest on the original bonds, amounted to over $701,000,000. A total of $227,000,000 has now been set aside to build two new locks, one on either side of the Isthmus.

There is no estimate available
on the cost of a Nicaraguan canal,
but there is little doubt that it would run to billions of dollars.

RED CROSS IN ACTION

Although the Red Cross serves throughout the year, it is at this season the need for that great organization is emphasized.

During these spring months disastrous storms without warning and with no notification of time or location. Several have struck midwestern states, leaving numerous dead and many injured.
Still greater numbers have been rendered homeless and there has been wide suffering.

When a community is leveled in minutes there is a desperate need for help and it must be both efficient and immediate. Slow-moving services of the state or federal governments cannot get under way in time to meet the needs.

It is during such emergencies
that the Red Cross goes into action. It has the organization and the skilled workers. It can move without the loss of time or motion to administer relief when and where relief is needed most. In time of disaster the Red Cross moves in to bury the dead, nurse
the injured, feed and clothe the homeless.

But these are weakening England's will for self-dependence and self-survival. They are doing England more harm, perhaps, than anything which has yet happened to her.

As for gold, Uncle Sam is caught in the toils of an experiment begun fifteen years ago. We are tangled with the greatest piece of speculation in history—an attempt to "corner" the world's supply of gold.

We have the corner—we have two-thirds or thereabouts of all the monetary gold on the face of the earth. It is locked up underground at Ft. Knox. So long as we keep our corner we can call the price of gold whatever we want.

The Roosevelt New Dealers bought most of this gold at $20.
As soon as they had the corner, they boosted the valuation to $35 an ounce. That was a paper profit, which the New Dealers promptly spent—although it could never be an actual profit until the gold had been sold at the higher figure.

There is nothing to stop President Truman from making another paper profit by marking the gold price once again.
Blackmarket gold prices are reported to have gone over $100 an ounce. That's the result of the American "corner." Gold is artificially scarce; therefore its price soars.

Partly also the high unofficial price for gold is due to the fact that since the end of the war, the Truman Administration has been buying up gold wherever possible. The total held in the corner is far and away the greatest amount ever accumulated in the history of the world—some $24 billion dollars worth, at the $35 an-ounce price.

But there's a joker. No other country on earth has any need for this gold. Nor do any of them have the resources to buy it, if it were for sale.

If this gold were suddenly dumped on the world markets, its price would break sharply for lack of buyers—probably sink far below the $20.67 which was the official price for a hundred years before the New Deal came in.

Mr. Truman can call this gold worth anything he chooses, so long as he doesn't sell it—doesn't break the corner. He could revalue at $60 an ounce, or $100 an ounce, or even more.

But it would still be the same amount of gold, and the moment its sale was attempted, the price would fall back to whatever normal the laws of supply and demand determined.

There is one purpose, and only one purpose, which could be served by the arbitrary revaluation of gold locked up in a hole in the ground.

That is the deception of the American people.

By the associate jugglery of revaluing the gold price, Mr.
Truman's finances could present a better balance sheet of Uncle Sam's business affairs.

But it would be nothing more than sleight of hand. If the gold were to be revalued, there wouldn't actually be one cent more resources supporting the government's colossal debts. Our slide towards the poorhouse wouldn't be checked one iota!

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Old Ditching Game

Washington, April 5.

FOLLOWING his congressional reverses, various publicists and politicians recently proclaimed that Mr.
Truman's prestige and popularity have shrunk to the place he occupied about a year ago, when they were regarded as nonexistent.
There may be some truth in this,
but it is significant that the most violent criticism and most virulent attacks come neither from Republicans nor from conservative Democrats, shocked at his paternalistic, not to say socialistic, program, but from the same self-styled "liberals" who tried to sweep him up in a corner and strike a match at the convention last June.

—O—

THESE were the not too politically gentle, either affiliated with, or sympathetic toward, the so-called Americans for Democratic Action and the CIO, who were out to draft Eisenhower, or Douglas, or anybody other than Truman. After his nomination, most of these supported him with obvious reluctance and only because they had no alternative. Actually, their only contribution toward his success was in the sympathy aroused for Mr.
Truman by the overdone public and private campaign of personal dispa-rament which they carried on for many months. That sympathy turned out to be one of his most valuable assets.

—O—

QUIESCENT for months, when Mr.
Truman's current troubles developed and he appeared to be losing his grip on Congress, these heroic fellows rushed forward not to help but to hurt. They do not assail his program for the reason that it is composed of the same kind of three-thumbed economic and socialistic monstrosities to which they were committed during the Roosevelt regime. But they again assail him as stupid, inadequate and inept. And they seize upon two of his appointments to prove his infirmity. It, of course, is true that Mr. Mon Wallgren should never have been named as head of the important National Resources and Security Board. It is also true that Mr. Louis F. Johnson, as Secretary of Defense, is a great step down
from the able and nonpolitical James Forrestal. The first was just a lame-duck pal whom Mr. Truman wanted to have around. The second was an aggressive West Virginia politician who collected a lot of campaign money when it was badly needed.

—O—

HOWEVER, these self-proclaimed
"liberals" had extremely little to say about Mr. Johnson until after he was appointed, though it was very widely known he would be.
And they had nothing whatever to say about Mr. Wallgren until after he had been rejected. Nor was there then so much as a word of credit given by the Wallgren critics to Senator Harry Byrd, whose firm and courageous attitude blocked his confirmation. It was typical that these anti-Truman "liberals" should accept as their own Senator Byrd's arguments against Mr. Wallgren while ignoring the fact that he had done the job. All of which makes seem well taken the point that the primary purpose of these "liberal" critics of Mr. Truman is not to help him be a better President or prevent him from making mistakes.

ON the contrary, their idea is to exploit his mistakes and keep making his job tougher all the time with the view of rendering him unavailable for renomination in 1952.
To this end, every time his foot slips and he leaves himself exposed they lambast him all over the lot.
The goal of this group of old Roosevelt New Dealers, they think, is to ditch Mr. Truman at the end of his term, name the Democratic candidate in the 1952 convention and thus, with the CIO, take complete charge of the Democratic party.
Everybody knows that was their idea a year ago, when they failed to put it over. But they by no means have given up the idea.

—O—

THOUGH some of them are at work on it all the time, for various reasons they are not likely to succeed. One is because they are not smart enough; another because they are not big enough. Last time they unintelligently tried to do two impossible things—one to scare Mr. Truman out of the field; the other to draft General Eisenhower.
They will not try either again. So far as Mr. Truman is concerned, they expect him voluntarily to resign and they want to insure this by doing what they can to make him sick of his job. So far as Eisenhower is concerned, they now realize two things they did not grasp in 1948—first, that the General is inherently a Republican and if available in 1952 it will be the Republican nomination he will want;
second, under no circumstances
would he be sufficiently compliant and conciliatory to the labor, racial and other special groups upon whose support the Democratic party now depends and with whom these anti-Truman "liberals" are dealing.

SUCH being the case, it is asked,
where then do they go for a candidate? The answer is easy and obvious. They go, of course, to the always co-operative and receptive
Mr. Justice William O. Douglas,
who has had the presidential itch
in aggravated form for a long time.
There is no doubt Douglas is their man. They infinitely prefer him to anyone else. Already the CIO has practically endorsed him in advance. There are a dozen "liberal" columnists and radio commentators who shout halloo every time
his name is mentioned. He is complacent enough to suit all the special groups, and would delight all the old Roosevelt "liberals" of whom he is one. But it is a little difficult to see why anyone else
should vote for him. It is even difficult to see how he could be put over in a Democratic convention
without very strong White House support, which he certainly will not get. Nonetheless, nearly all the bright boys who tried to ditch Mr.
Truman a year ago are pinning their hopes on the eager justice for the next try. And they do not think now is a bit too early to start work either.

—O—

work on it all the time, for various

ceed. One is because they are not

FLEETWING ESTATES

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs.
William Smith were Mr. and Mrs.
Ernest Smith, Mr. Smith's brother and sister-in-law, and his mother, Mrs. Harold Smith; also Mrs. Alfred Hitchcock, of Brooklyn, N. Y.
Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George Seeger entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Afferbach, of Mayfair.

Fighting Smallpox

A LITTLE Cuban girl hides her face as a nurse inoculates her against the threat of smallpox. Scenes like this were familiar in Havana as authorities began mass vaccinations to prevent a smallpox epidemic, following the discovery of the first case of the disease in 20 years. The vaccine, enough for 500,000 people, was flown into Cuba by the United States Navy. (International)

Trophy of Victory

PACKING under his arm the carcass
of a bear, killed in a hand-and-paw
battle, woodchopper Lester Viles, Kingfield, Maine, congratulates himself on being alive. Armed only with his axe, Viles encountered the animal as it left its winter hibernation quarters. After one successful swing, Viles fled back to camp.
Getting a sharper axe, he followed a bloody trail until he met his foe—
this time for a kill. (International)

How to Be Successful at College

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

TO College Students: You know you have far more intelligence than the average person, else your college would not have admitted you. No one could convince you that you don't have a great deal of self-regard. Although you might at times give the impression to some people that you don't care whether you prove a successful student or not, down deep in your real self you are very eager to succeed.

Being intelligent, you know very well that you will have to manage yourself intelligently if you are to accomplish much at books. On this line you have had some good intentions. But other interests more alluring may have captured you more completely than you had meant to let them capture you. And before you know it you may have neglected your studies for a longer time, and have fallen in arrears with them farther than you have realized.

Better Judgment

Even though your better judgment may have warned you occasionally, you just promised yourself to get down and dig the next day or very soon thereafter. Maybe you did get down to work. But then the piled up work facing you may have overwhelmed you with discouragement and at a weak moment you may have run away from the awful job, not pausing at all to figure how you might get back again. Or, at moments when you began to worry about some of your mounting work,
you may have remembered that you often had been in a similar predicament in high school and always came through anyway. Here you probably slipped badly in your reasoning, in assuming that the high school situations were comparable to the more recent ones.

If, in spite of your good intentions
and occasional almost-religious resolve you don't put yourself into the harness to pull the load so far behind and heavy, you may not even muster the energy and zeal to keep up with the current assignments. As a result you are going to worry and feel depressed; you may even have anxieties—all of which will render your future college success more unsure.

Fear of Diagnosis

You then may be very much like the person who supposes he has a cancer but cannot make himself go to a physician for fear it will be diagnosed as cancer and a surgical operation will have to follow.

Even in such a state you still might, being intelligent, rule yourself so well as to diagnose your own problem and prescribe, symbolically,
for yourself a surgical operation.

Here are some of the things you will, therefore, do: Write out a study program and follow it to the letter. Keep yourself alertly attentive every minute in the classroom.
Do all the assigned readings and written work promptly. Each evening review what you had learned that day. Prepare daily each assignment. After you have the meaning of the key facts and symbols of each unit of work, make yourself memorize them. These self-imposed rules should be good for any student. You might find some good suggestions in my bulletin, "Tips To Students" (to be had in a stamped envelope). Set aside a period each day to work on your arrears. The road to learning is not paved with plush. Drive yourself and drive hard. If you use the intelligence you have you will. Why use only cow brains when you have college brains?

Little Courtesies
help so much!

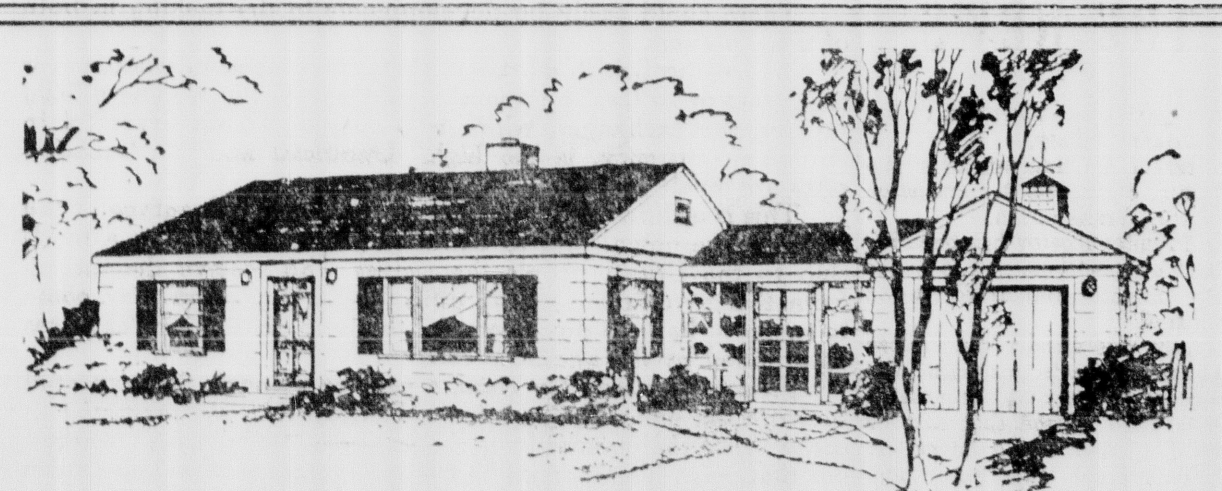

On party-line telephones, too... little courtesies help to give an "extra" value! Party-line neighbors who take the lead in courtesy find their favors returned. They enjoy better service. So does everyone else on the line.

There's nothing difficult about party-line courtesy.
When you keep calls reasonably brief, you're being courteous. You're a good party-line neighbor, too, when you space calls so that others may use the line in the intervals... and when you hang up gently on finding the line in use.

Text: Exodus 20:7, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

The sin of profanity is common among us. Men make a feeble attempt to praise God on Sunday while they blaspheme His holy name the rest of the week. Any offense against the name of God or His Son, Jesus Christ is an indictable and punishable sin. Filthy communication, or shameful speaking prove that the heart is corrupt, for, said our Lord: "Those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart" (Matthew 15:18). Men who swear think blasphemous sounds "bit" and "manly." But this evil practice only proves that the vocabulary is base and limited, to say the least. Remember, the Lord will not hold him guiltless!

BUCKS SPORTSMEN HEAR SCHENCK AT COUNTY SEAT

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5.—The merits of a pre-big game hunting season with the bow and arrow in Pennsylvania were ably presented to delegates of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs here last evening when Clayton B. Schenck, official of the Pennsylvania State Archers Association, addressed the Federation.

Representatives from 19 Bucks county clubs were on hand when Schenck declared that "we are interested solely in seeing more persons, more sportsmen have more time in which to enjoy their particular sports, and we know that a season ahead of the regular deer season for hunting with the bow and arrow only would have no appreciable effect on reducing the Commonwealth's deer herd."

"In Michigan there is a 35-day season ahead of the regular big game season for sportsmen who use the bow and arrow to hunt, and in Wisconsin there is a 46-day season. "Figures compiled in Michigan reveal that the sportsmen hunting with the bow and arrow over a 35-day period accounted for just 3.2 per cent of the total big game kill, while the sportsmen using firearms, in a much shorter hunting period, accounted for 34.4 per cent," the speaker declared.

"New York, New Jersey and California have pre-game seasons and they have not been working a hardship on the rifle hunter. Instead they have added days of real pleasure and relaxation for the sportsmen who hunt with the bow and arrow."

Schenck, who is also president of the Lancaster County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, answered numerous questions for delegates following his talk.

President Charles Wetherill, who presided at last evening's meeting, gave a detailed report on the Federation's pheasant raising project at the Eastern State Prison. At least 500 day-old chicks will be raised by inmates of the institution this year for the Bucks County Federation.

The Federation endorsed two current bills in Harrisburg which would provide for the closing of all public streams in the Commonwealth which have been stocked with trout from March 15th to the opening of the trout season. The two bills, HR 132 and S 1192, also have the endorsement of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

Other legislation, termed insidious and vicious by the group, and which would practically prohibit the bearing of firearms and air rifles in the Commonwealth, was vigorously opposed by the group. This proposed legislation, HR 1176 has been opposed by sportsmen in all sections of the Commonwealth. One new club, the Cattaraugus Bucks Hunting and Fishing Club with headquarters in Hathboro, was voted a membership in the County Federation.

State Fish Warden Harry Cole reported that all public streams have been stocked in readiness for the opening of the 1949 trout season on April 15th. The two trout streams in Bucks County, Mill Creek at Buckingham, and Cook's Creek at Sprinetown, have both received liberal stockings.

The Bristol teachers approve a $2300 minimum salary for new teachers.

The Bristol teachers approve of the $350 per year raise for those teachers not on state maximum mandated salary schedule.

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

GLEANED BY SCRIBES

Residents of Dublin borough have voted 24 to 15 in favor of sending pupils of grades five to 12 to Sellersville-Perkasie schools.

The purpose of the meeting, attended by between 40 and 50 persons, was to determine what action the patrons of the Dublin schools want the board to take.

Three propositions were presented for consideration. One was to retain the schools at Dublin on their present status and to forego the full State appropriation because the borough schools do not have the required 30 pupils per teacher.

Another was to take up the Deep Run Valley Joint School District's plan of absorbing the pupils, and the third was to send the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grade pupils and the high school students to Sell-Perk and to keep the one room open here for the first four grades.

The plan voted will be a three-year setup. According to an agreement last year, Sell-Perk will provide the transportation at a rate of a dollar per mile per day at the expense of the Dublin school district.

Action taken does not mean that Dublin will affiliate with Sell-Perk. Deep Run Valley or any other joint school district at present.

Before the plan approved at the meeting goes into force, it will have to be approved by the Dublin school board.

The borough at present has a school population of 57, and a majority of the high school students are going to Sell-Perk.

FEW COUPLES SEEK MARRIAGE LICENSES

Only 76 Ask For Such At Bucks County Seat In Month of March

MANY VERY YOUNG

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5—Only 76 couples sought marriage licenses in this county seat during the month of March, according to the Clerk of Orphans Court.

It was essentially a month of young brides and grooms, after the many marriages of older persons during the mid-Winter months. Almost half of the applicants were barely of age, with six would-be benedicts who need parental consent and 21 underage prospective housewives. The one young bachelor was only 18, with the other five aged 20. Of the brides, 3 were 17 years of age, 5 were 18, 8 were 19 and 4 were 20.

In the divorced group the men held sway, with 16 males re-treading the bridal path and 7 grass widows taking vows again. Every divorced person had received his or her paper since 1943, one couple doing a remarrying act after a three year separation, and one man taking his third step into married bliss.

Death had claimed four former spouses and 3 husbands, one man's wife having died just 2 months ago. Two men, however, had waited 13 and 18 years before plunging a second time.

The Philadelphia section still provided the largest number of middle-aiders with 42, thirty of whom were from the city proper. The lower part of the county came through with 39 candidates and Bristol leading as usual. In the upper portion of the county, Quakertown sent 8 grooms and 6 brides out of a total of 31.

CLERGYMAN BURIED

Funeral service was held for the Rev. Oscar Randall at Lansdowne on Friday. The Rev. Mr. Randall, who had been in the Methodist ministry for 60 years, had as his first pastorate the Yardley Methodist Church, and at one time served as pastor at Emile and Tullytown churches. He had during recent years filled various pulpits in the capacity of a supply preacher.

A physician residing nearby was called.

The alarms are telephoned to the Cold Spring Bleachery, from which plant the fire alarm is sounded. The fire call was received at the station at about 9:35 p. m. The person making the call hung up before giving a name, but told the firemen there was a fire at the River Road and the railroad bridge. It was to this point that the firemen were enroute when the accident occurred. Arriving at this destination no evidence of fire was found. Later, however, it was learned that a lot at another bridge of the Reading Railroad, which crosses South Main street near the American Legion home had been burned off.

There were about eight men on the apparatus at the time and according to Fire Chief, Horace Eisenbrey, Hurley, who had been a member for about one year, attempted to get onto the rear of one side where there is very little space on which to stand as it is where the ladders are mounted. Firemen usually stand further toward the front on the side. There is a clearance of about six or eight inches between the apparatus and the doors. Hurley was crushed in this space.

Public School News: NEW SAFETY CONTEST UNDERWAY AT SCHOOL

Starting Date Is April 4th At The Bath Street School

COUNSELLOR'S TRIP

A new safety contest is now underway at Bath street school.

March 30th marked the end of a successful safety campaign carried on at that school under supervision of the Safety Patrol Squad and its adviser, Mrs. Rena Couch.

At the close of each week the children received a report of the safety record of each room. Each room having a perfect score was awarded the "Star of the Week" for their "Smiling Face" poster. Not one violation of the safety rules occurred during the last two weeks of the month.

On Wednesday the final stars were awarded for March. Mrs. Blitt's first grade and Miss Elva Cruise's second grade each received a large gold star for perfect records for five weeks. Silver stars for perfect records for four weeks without violations were given to three rooms. Two rooms received blue stars, and one a red star for three and two weeks' perfect record, respectively.

A new contest started yesterday and the children are enthusiastically looking forward to bettering their records. The April contest will last

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Klerman
(Distributed by International News Service)

Newfoundland had no trouble gaining provincial status in Canada but we still have Alaska on a waiting list and no one knows why.

Some say the country just couldn't stand two more Senators but we've got some Senators hardly used this session.

Sen. Taylor has been busy reforming Birmingham, Alabama and Alabama can do no less than send its two Senators to Idaho to reform Boise in exchange.

That will mean two more absentees along with Sen. Wagner who hasn't punched the clock in two years.

Sen. Wagner hasn't retired—he's of retirement age but Dewey isn't and he has the power of appointment.

Hawaii has no luck in trying to join the club either—somebody keeps putting a fly in the pot but the way things look we could use all the States we can pickup.

GOLD AND THE POUND

Rumors continue that the stage is being set, in Washington and elsewhere, for the announcement of financial news of world-wide importance.

Hints are that the news will concern the English pound sterling, or the value of gold, or both.

There could easily be developments in the making in both of these matters.

As for the British currency, there have been intimations for two years or so that the pound would be devalued. The official rate on the exchanges, which is a couple of cents over $4 in American currency, is too high. Unofficial and black-market rates are much lower.

This is a differential which works to the disadvantage of the British government and to British exporters. It also is a hardship to the British people themselves who receive the money from the government at the official rate but, when they come to spend it, have to do so some of the time on the basis of prices determined by the unofficial rate.

France devalued her franc a year or so ago. She expected to score big gains by the price-reductions this was predicted to mean in all the commodities she exports. But it hasn't worked out that way. The increase in France's dollar-exports have been inconsequential. Currency juggling never yet has taken the place of efficiency in production. Also, France has persisted in further inflating her already watered currency.

The same arguments that led to the revaluation of the franc will be heard supporting the devaluation of the pound, if this is on the way. The British people will be told that this is a new master-stroke by the Socialist Party. They will be told that it will automatically increase exports, reduce home-front prices, wipe out scarcities, etc.

Actually, in itself it will do none of these things. England is up against the problem of having a governmental "give-away" program that uses up more of the national income than the country can afford.

Pegging the pound, or un-pegging it, won't change that basic picture. England will have hard times until she carves her government spending back into the figure of what she can afford. She may kid herself, for a time, that the American money-gifts concealed in the ERP program are keeping her on easy street.

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

Twelve nations signed the North Atlantic treaty in Washington yesterday, warning any aggressor that an attack on one would be regarded as an attack on all. The signatories were the United States, Canada, Denmark, Iceland, Portugal, Britain, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Norway, Belgium and Luxembourg.

"For us," President Truman said in an address just before the actual signing, "war is not inevitable."

Charges that the pact was "an aggressive act" he called "absolutely untrue," saying it "is a shield against aggression" anywhere in the world. This country's concern for the security and welfare of other areas, such as the Near East, he added, has not lessened.

Washington observers saw the signing as the logical last step in President Truman's repudiation of isolationism in this country's foreign policy. Congressional reaction indicated a long and searching debate, particularly on an arms program, before ratification.

From Iran came a report of a heavy engagement in which Russian forces attacked an Iranian frontier post in Azerbaijan.

Delegates to the United Nations General Assembly, which reconvenes at Flushing Meadows this afternoon, gave close attention to the North Atlantic treaty.

The Israeli Parliament, after bitter debate, sustained the armistice signed with Transjordan.

Vice Premier Kostov has been relieved of his positions and is under arrest, official Bulgarian news agency said.

Congress was warned that unless President Truman's program was disposed of by July 31 the session would be held beyond that date of a special session would be called. Senate debate continued on authorizing funds for the second year of the Marshall Plan; both houses advanced provisions to make available to non-Communist China an unexpended balance of $54,000,000 from last year's appropriation.

The jury trying eleven American Communist leaders was told that an American Politburo, directed by Moscow, controlled every action and statement by the Communist party in the United States.

ANOTHER CANAL?

Nicaragua's Defense Minister Anastasio Somoza, acting for his government, has offered the United States a 99 year lease on sections of Nicaraguan territory if this country will construct another canal to link the Atlantic and the Pacific. It is a very tempting offer, one that will find many backers in this country.

But does the United States need another canal? Proponents of a second water bridge linking the two oceans have pointed out the extreme vulnerability of the Panama Canal, and the drastic consequences of its destruction in time of war. Their primary consideration is the 8,000 mile journey around the Horn of Africa and supply ships would have to make if the canal were to be put out of commission.

It seems to many that this argument is no longer valid. It can safely be said that the canal's strategic importance was decreasing long before the end of World War II. Today the U. S. no longer has a two-ocean Navy. It has two great navies, each with an equal number of supply and combat ships, and each with its "mothball" reserve fleet. Either of these two vast armadas is greater than any combat unit afloat under a foreign flag. From a strategic standpoint, then, there seems to be less need of another canal than there was a decade ago.

From an economic standpoint the case against another canal is more clear cut. The Panama Canal actually cost the United States $375,000,000 when it was completed in 1914. Up to 1944 the total cost, including improvements and interest on the original bonds, amounted to over $701,000,000. A total of $227,000,000 has now been set aside to build two new locks, one on either side of the Isthmus.

There is no estimate available on the cost of a Nicaraguan canal, but there is little doubt that it would run to billions of dollars.

RED CROSS IN ACTION

Although the Red Cross serves throughout the year, it is at this season the need for that great organization is emphasized.

During these spring months disastrous storms strike without warning and with no notification of time or location. Several have struck midwestern states, leaving numerous dead and many injured. Still greater numbers have been rendered homeless and there has been wide suffering.

When a community is leveled in minutes there is a desperate need for help and it must be both efficient and immediate. Slow-moving services of the state or federal governments cannot get under way in time to meet the needs.

It is during such emergencies that the Red Cross goes into action. It has the organization and the skilled workers. It can move without the loss of time or motion to administer relief when and where relief is needed most. In time of disaster the Red Cross moves in to bury the dead, nurse the injured, feed and clothe the homeless.

But these are weakening England's will for self-dependence and self-survival. They are doing England more harm, perhaps, than anything which has yet happened to her.

As for gold, Uncle Sam is caught in the coils of an experiment begun fifteen years ago. We are tangled with the greatest piece of speculation in history—an attempt to "corner" the world's supply of gold.

We have the corner—we have two-thirds or thereabouts of all the monetary gold on the face of the earth. It is locked up underground at Ft. Knox. So long as we keep our corner we can call the price of gold whatever we want.

The Roosevelt New Dealers bought most of this gold at $20. As soon as they had the corner, they boosted the valuation to $35 an ounce. That was a paper profit, which the New Dealers promptly spent—although it could never be an actual profit until the gold had been sold at the higher figure.

There is nothing to stop President Truman from making another paper profit by marking up the gold price once again. Blackmarket gold prices are reported to have gone over $100 an ounce. That's the result of the American "corner". Gold is artificially scarce; therefore its price soars.

Partly also the high unofficial price for gold is due to the fact that since the end of the war, the Truman Administration has been buying up gold wherever possible. The total held in the corner is far and away the greatest amount ever accumulated in the history of the world—some $24 billion dollars worth, at the $35-an-ounce price.

But there's a joker. No other country on earth has any need for this gold. Nor do any of them have the resources to buy it, if it were for sale.

If this gold were suddenly dumped on the world markets, its price would break sharply for lack of buyers—probably sink far below the $20.67 which was the official price for a hundred years before the New Deal came in.

Mr. Truman can call this gold worth anything he chooses, so long as he doesn't sell it—doesn't break the corner. He could revalue at $60 an ounce, or $100 an ounce, or even more.

But it would still be the same amount of gold, and the moment its sale was attempted, the price would fall back to whatever normal the laws of supply and demand determined.

There is one purpose, and only one purpose, which could be served by the arbitrary revaluation of gold locked up in a hole in the ground.

That is the deception of the American people. By the financial jugglery of revaluing the gold price, Mr. Truman's associates could present a better balance sheet of Uncle Sam's business affairs.

But it would be nothing more than sleight of hand. If the gold were to be revalued, there wouldn't actually be one cent more resources supporting the government's colossal debts. Our slide towards the poorhouse wouldn't be checked one iota!

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

The Old Ditching Game

Washington, April 5. FOLLOWING his congressional reverses, various publicists and politicians recently proclaimed that Mr. Truman's prestige and popularity have shrunk to the place he occupied about a year ago, when they were regarded as nonexistent. There may be some truth in this, but it is significant that the most violent criticism and most virulent attacks come neither from Republicans nor from conservative Democrats, shocked at his paternalistic, not to say socialistic, program, but from the same self-styled "liberals" who tried to sweep him in a corner and strike a match at the convention last June.

THESE were the not too politically bright gentlemen, either affiliated with, or sympathetic toward, the so-called Americans for Democratic Action and the CIO, who were out to draft Eisenhower, or Douglas or anybody other than Truman. After his nomination, most of these supported him with obvious reluctance and only because they had no alternative. Actually, their only contribution toward his success was in the sympathy aroused for Mr. Truman by the overdone public and private campaign of personal disparagement which they carried on for many months. That sympathy turned out to be one of his most valuable assets.

QUICKSAND for months, when Mr. Truman's current troubles developed and he appeared to be losing his grip on Congress, these heretics rushed forward not to help but to hurt. They do not assail his program for the reason that it is composed of the same kind of three-thumbed economic and socialistic monstrosities to which they were committed during the Roosevelt regime. But they again assail him as stupid, inadequate and inept. And they seize upon two of his appointments to prove his ineptness. It, of course, is true that Mr. Mon Wallgren should never have been named as head of the important National Resources and Security Board. It is also true that Mr. Louis F. Johnson, as Secretary of Defense, is a great step down from the able and nonpolitical James Forrestal. The first was just a lame-duck pal whom Mr. Truman wanted to have around. The second was an aggressive West Virginia politician who collected a lot of campaign money when it was badly needed.

HOWEVER, these self-proclaimed "liberals" had extremely little to say about Mr. Johnson until after he was appointed, though it was very widely known he would be. And they had nothing whatever to say about Mr. Wallgren until after he had been rejected. Nor was there then so much as a word of credit given by the Wallgren critics to Senator Harry Byrd, whose firm and courageous attitude blocked his confirmation. It was typical that these anti-Truman "liberals" should accept as their own Senator Byrd's arguments against Mr. Wallgren while ignoring the fact that he had done the job. All of which makes seem well taken the point that the primary purpose of these "liberal" critics of Mr. Truman is not to help him be a better President or prevent him from making mistakes.

ON the contrary, their idea is to exploit his mistakes and keep making his job tougher all the time with the view of rendering him unavailable for renomination in 1952. To this end, every time his foot slips and he leaves himself exposed, they lambast him all over the lot. The goal of this group of old Roosevelt New Dealers, they think, is to ditch Mr. Truman at the end of his term, name the Democratic candidate in the 1952 convention and thus, with the CIO, take complete charge of the Democratic party. Everybody knows that was their idea a year ago, when they failed to put it over. But they by no means have given up the idea.

THOUGH some of them are at work on it all the time, for various reasons they are not likely to succeed. One is because they are not smart enough—another because they are not big enough. Last time they unintelligently tried to do two impossible things—one to scare Mr. Truman out of the field; the other to draft General Eisenhower. They will not try either again. So far as Mr. Truman is concerned, they expect him voluntarily to retire and they want to insure this by doing what they can to make him sick of his job. So far as Eisenhower is concerned, they now realize two things they did not grasp in 1948—first, that the General is inherently a Republican and if available in 1952 it will be the Republican nomination he will want; second, under no circumstances would he be sufficiently compliant and conciliatory to the labor, racial and other special groups upon whose support the Democratic party now depends and with whom these anti-Truman "liberals" are dealing.

SUCH being the case, it is asked, where then do they go for a candidate? The answer is easy and obvious. They go, of course, to the always co-operative and receptive Mr. Justice William O. Douglas, who has had the presidential itch in aggravated form for a long time. There is no doubt Douglas is their man. They infinitely prefer him to anyone else. Already the CIO has practically endorsed him in advance. There are a dozen "liberal" columnists and radio commentators who shout hallooah every time his name is mentioned. He is compliant enough to suit all the special groups and would delight all the old Roosevelt "liberals" of whom he is one. But it is a little difficult to see why anyone else should vote for him. It is even difficult to see how he could be put over in a Democratic convention without very strong White House support, which he certainly will not get. Nonetheless, nearly all the bright boys who tried to ditch Mr. Truman a year ago are pinning their hopes on the easier justice for the next try. And they do not think now is a bit too early to start work either.

FLEETWING ESTATES

Week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith were Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith, Mr. Smith's brother and sister-in-law, and his mother, Mrs. Harold Smith; also Mrs. Alfred Hitchcock, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George Seeger entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Aftersbach, of Mayfair.

Fighting Smallpox

A LITTLE Cuban girl hides her face as a nurse inoculates her against the threat of smallpox. Scenes like this were familiar in Havana as authorities began mass vaccinations to prevent a smallpox epidemic, following the discovery of the first case of the disease in 20 years. The vaccine, enough for 500,000 people, was flown into Cuba by the United States Navy. (International)

Armed only with his axe, Viles encountered the animal as it left its winter hibernation quarters. After one successful swing, Viles fled back to camp. Getting a sharper axe, he followed a bloody trail until he met his foe—this time for a kill. (International)

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.
TO College Students: You know you have far more intelligence than the average person, else your college would not have admitted you. No one could convince you that you don't have a great deal of self-reliance. Although you might at times give the impression to some people that you don't care whether you prove a successful student or not, down deep in your real self you are very eager to succeed.

Being intelligent, you know very well that you will have to manage yourself intelligently if you are to accomplish much at books. On this line you have had some good intentions. But other interests more alluring may have captured you more completely than you had meant to let them capture you. And before you know it you may have neglected your studies for a longer time, and have fallen in arrears with them farther than you have realized.

Even though your better judgment may have warned you occasionally, you just promised yourself to get down and dig the next day or very soon thereafter. Maybe you did get down to hard work. But then the piled up work facing you may have overwhelmed you with discouragement and at a weak moment you may have run away from the awful 'oh, not pausing at all to figure how you might get back again. Or, at moments when you began to worry about some of your mounting work, you may have remembered that you often had been in a similar predicament in high school and always came through anyway. Here you probably slipped badly in your reasoning, in assuming that the high school situations were comparable to the more recent ones. If, in spite of your good intentions and occasional almost religious resolve you don't put yourself into the harness to pull the load so far behind and heavy, you may not even muster the energy and zeal to keep up with the current assignments. As a result you are going to worry and feel depressed; you may even have anxieties—all of which will render your future college success more unsure.

You then may be very much like the person who supposes he has a cancer but cannot make himself go to a physician for fear it will be diagnosed as cancer and a surgical operation will have to follow.

Even in such a state you still might, being intelligent, rule yourself so well as to diagnose your own problem and prescribe, symbolically, for yourself a surgical operation.

Here are some of the things you will, therefore, do: Write out a study program and follow it to the letter. Keep yourself alertly attentive every minute in the classroom. Do all the assigned readings and written work promptly. Each evening review what you had learned that day. Prepare daily each assignment. After you have the meaning of the key facts and symbols of each unit of work, make yourself memorize them. These self-imposed rules should be good for any student. You might find some good suggestions in my bulletin, "Tips To Students" (to be had in a stamped envelope). Set aside a period each day to work on your arrears. The road to learning is not paved with plush. Drive yourself and drive hard. If you use the intelligence you have you will. Why use only cow brains when you have college brains?

Little Courtesies help so much!

On party-line telephones, too... Little courtesies help to give an "extra" value! Party-line neighbors who take the lead in courtesy find their favors returned. They enjoy better service. So does everyone else on the line.

There's nothing difficult about party-line courtesy. When you keep calls reasonably brief, you're being courteous. You're a good party-line neighbor, too, when you space calls so that others may use the line in the intervals... and when you hang up gently on finding the line in use.

Two Divorces Granted; Other Court Cases

District Attorney Edward G. Biesler yesterday filed a petition asking the court to appoint counsel to represent Pearl Ruth Tarantino, 22, of Quakertown, R. D. 2, who will be before the court on a murder charge growing out of the death of her new-born child in a field near her home last January.

Miss Tarantino is confined to the Bucks County Prison. She was indicted by the Grand Jury on February 15th, this year, when a true bill was returned. The next term of criminal court is listed for May 23, but whether the Tarantino case will be tried then has not been decided.

A hearing was held yesterday in the court of Common Pleas before Judge Keller and Special Deputy Attorney General Edmund P. Hanson, for the State Liquor Control Board, in which Mrs. Florence T. Walker, of the Danboro Hotel, asked for a decree and certificate authorizing her to act as a female sole trader and for other relief.

Four witnesses testified that the Danboro Hotel, that carries a license held by Florence Walker and her husband, is conducted in a respectable and first-class manner, and that they see no reason why Mrs. Walker should not carry on with the license in her name. The action was taken because of the fact that Mrs. Walker's husband disappeared from home some time ago and has not returned.

Text: Exodus 20:7. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain; for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

The sin of profanity is common among us. Men make a feeble attempt to praise God on Sunday while they blaspheme His holy name the rest of the week. Any offense against the name of God or His Son, Jesus Christ is an indictable and punishable sin. Filthy communication, or shameful speaking prove that the heart is corrupt, for, said our Lord: "Those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart" (Matthew 15:18). Men who swear think blasphemy sounds "big" and "manly". But this evil practice only proves that the vocabulary is base and limited, to say the least. Remember, the Lord will not hold him guiltless!

BUCKS SPORTSMEN HEAR SCHENCK AT COUNTY SEAT

DOYLESTOWN, Apr. 5 — The merits of a pre-big game hunting season with the bow and arrow in Pennsylvania were ably presented to delegates of the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs here last evening when Clayton B. Schenck, official of the Pennsylvania State Archers Association, addressed the Federation.

Representatives from 19 Bucks county clubs were on hand when Schenck declared that "we are interested solely in seeing more persons, more sportsmen, have more time in which to enjoy their particular sports, and we know that a season ahead of the regular deer season for hunting with the bow and arrow only would have no appreciable effect on reducing the Commonwealth's deer herd."

"In Michigan there is a 35-day season ahead of the regular big game season for sportsmen who use the bow and arrow to hunt, and in Wisconsin there is a 46-day season. Figures compiled in Michigan reveal that the sportsmen hunting with the bow and arrow over a 35-day period accounted for just 3.2 per cent of the total big game kill, while the sportsmen using firearms, in a much shorter hunting period, accounted for 34.4 per cent," the speaker declared.

"New York, New Jersey and California have pre-game seasons and they have not been working a hardship on the rifle hunter. Instead they have added days of real pleasure and relaxation for the sportsmen who hunt with the bow and arrow."

Schenck, who is also president of the Lancaster County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs, answered numerous questions for delegates following his talk.

President Charles Wetherill, who presided at last evening's meeting, gave a detailed report on the Federation's pheasant raising project at the Eastern State Prison. At least 500 day-old chicks will be raised by inmates of the institution this year for the Bucks County Federation.

The Federation endorsed two current bills in Harrisburg which would provide for the closing of all public streams in the Commonwealth with trout from March 15th to the opening of the trout season. The two bills, HR 132 and S 1192, also have the endorsement of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission.

Other legislation, termed insidious and vicious by the group and which would practically prohibit

the bearing of firearms and air rifles in the Commonwealth, was vigorously opposed by the group. This proposed legislation, HR 1175, has been opposed by sportsmen in all sections of the Commonwealth. One new club, the Cuttawissa Bucks Hunting and Fishing Club, with headquarters in Hathers, was voted a membership in the County Federation.

State Fish Warden Harry Cole reported that all public streams have been stocked in readiness for the opening of the 1949 trout season on April 15th. The two trout streams in Bucks County, Mill Creek at Buckingham, and Cook's Creek at Springtown, have both received liberal stockings.

Delegates from the following clubs were represented at the meeting last evening: Bristol Bucks County, Conestoga, Delaware Valley, Edgely, Great Swamp, Mount Pleasant, Langhorne, Morrisville, New Hope, Newtown, Newportville, Rod & Gun, Taletown, Ye Olde Hunting & Fishing, Mumma'sville, Branch Valley, Springtown, Trout Sport and Yardley.
